

The Legend of the Pelegriin town

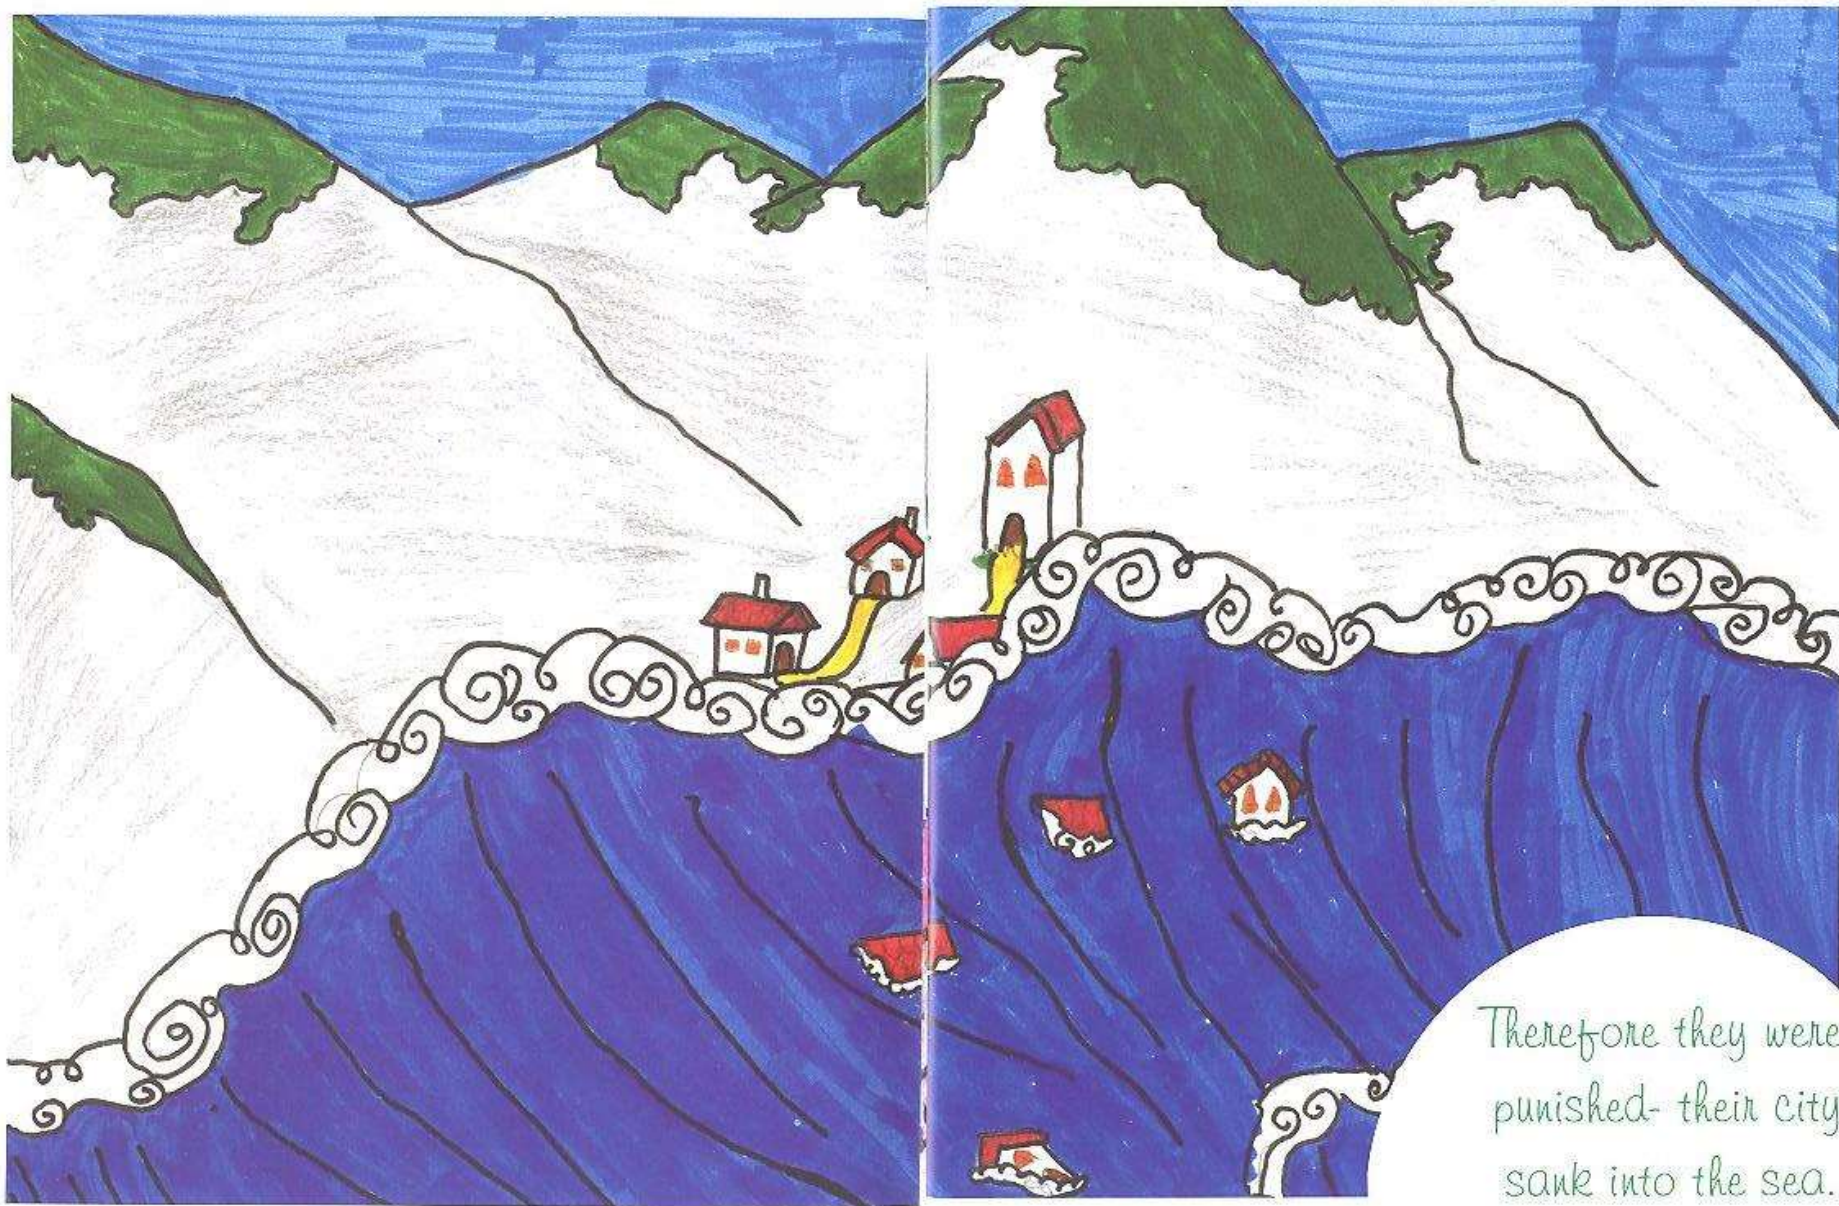

The legends
of Brela

Once upon a time there was the rich and beautiful city Pelegrin.

The residents constantly celebrated exuberant feasts and chased the beggars away.

Therefore they were punished- their city sank into the sea.

Every year at Christmas at the stroke of midnight a carriage in full gallop, with a princess and a prince, emerges from the sea.

In order for the city to emerge again from the sea, a person witnessing the scene has to jump into the carriage and give the reins to the prince.

According to another story, a princess comes to the coast and waits for the hero on a white horse who will save her from the raging water.

After they overcome all obstacles, the city will emerge from the sea.
